

ABSTRACT

The invention provides a system for facilitating communication between two or more sites, where the system comprises an information utility operable to enable communication
5 between a first site and a second site, and a user registration system coupled to the information utility, the user registration system operable to enable the first and second sites to identify users without sharing user information.

10

50052725.doc

10037406-13491